RESEARCH DOCTORATE IN MUSICOLOGY

The Research Doctorate in Musicology, which is part of the Doctorate School in Humanistic Sciences of the University of Pavia, aims at a thorough-going musicological competence.

The Doctorate covers four research areas or curricula: Musical Dramaturgy, Musical Philology, Organology and Musical Iconography, and History of the musical theories. These four curricula are annually started up according to the projects approved by the Board.

The Doctorate lasts three years. The didactic activities include seminars held by internal professors (both of the Doctorate Board and of the Department), seminars and lectures given by guest professors, both Italian and foreign, group discussions on planned theses and theses in progress and participation to symposia in Italy and abroad. During their first year, the candidates must follow the didactic activities scheduled by the Board (unless arranged differently); during their second and third year, mainly devoted to the preparation of the thesis, candidates’ participation to didactic activities is not compulsory but nevertheless recommended, as far as it is consistent with their research needs. Furthermore, PhD candidates must participate to the meetings of the Board: when they are called by the coordinator; in particular, in the last meeting of the academic year (usually at the end of October), each candidate will present and discuss a written report on the work in progress of his thesis. On the basis of such a report, the Board will decide to admit or not to the following PhD year, or to the final exam for the achievement of the title of ‘Research Doctor’.
